tion of Aviation Grounds Near D. C. Line. The army appropriation bill, which

s now in conference between the two nouses of Congress, provides $300,000 for the acquisition of the College Park, Md., aviation field, to be used by the army for aviation purposes. This provision, which is contained in a Senate amendment adopted on motion of Senator Smith of Maryland, has the approval of the army aviation branch of the Signal Corps, it is said. The value to the government of such a permanent aviation field would be very great, it is urged, and it would be located within a short distance of the capital, where the War Department could keep a direct supervision of the work and where Congress could have ocular demonstration of the perfection of the service, it is argued.

The government is assured of obtaining the land required at a reasonable figure, under the terms of the Senate amendment, friends of the provision say, for it provides that the land may be purchased for a sum within the amount specified, and at a price which is acceptable to the Secretary of War. And if the owners ask too much for the land, then provision is made for the condemnation of the land by the government. vision, which is contained in a Senate condemnation of the land by the government.

The aviation field is admirably suited for the purposes proposed, it is said. In the past it was leased for the use of the army aviators and daily instructions were continued there. Since then it has been used by manufacturers of zeroplanes for the purpose of trying out machines.
